Promises made for Moro's release

ROME (AP) — Showing new flexibility, Italy's ruling Christian Democrat Party promised Wednesday to give "generosity and clemency" to prison inmates if the Red Brigades release kidnap victim Aldo Moro and stop their terrorism.

But party leaders once again refused to negotiate with the terrorist gang for Moro's freedom and indicated that any amnesty or reforms by the government would take place after, and not before, the release of the 61-year-old party president and five-time Italian premier.

Salt Lake hit with blackout

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A power blackout hit parts of downtown Salt Lake City for up to 32 minutes Wednesday, leaving several offices in darkness.

Grant Pendleton, Utah Power & Light Co. spokesman, said a equipment failure at an underground substation at the east end of Arrow Press Square caused the blackout.

Newspapers of the Deseret News, The Salt Lake Tribune, United Press International and The Associated Press were darkened. Candles were lit in several downtown offices.

Deseret News Managing Editor J. M. Heslop said the blackout delayed printing of the newspaper. The first edition came of the press about a half hour behind schedule.

Pendleton said protective equipment at the substation opened up switches feeding isolated pockets of the downtown area at about 9:50 a.m. He said crews got out of the affected area back on at 10:18 a.m. and restored power.

The trouble began with a transformer failure at the substation, Pendleton said, adding that protective relays sensed the trouble and opened switches to prevent damage to the underground system.

Pendleton said he could not determine exactly the extent of the outage.

Statue controversy continues

Plans to move Brigham Young's statue from the intersection of Main and South Temple could lead to a court battle, the Mormon pioneer's grandson warned Tuesday.

George Cannon Young, an architect who is emerging as a spokesman for those who oppose moving the statue, a full-block north of the temple, said he "isn't prepared to announce his plans yet, but he said "there are certain things made for action."

But City Attorney Roger Cutler said he didn't know of any vested interest anyone would have in the statue to prevent Salt Lake City from moving it, especially since it sits in the middle of a city street.

Candidate registration deadline

The deadline for registering to run for local offices is 5 p.m. May 10, the Utah County elections office announced Wednesday.

The registration deadline for justice of the peace, state and county commissioners, the United States Congress and state offices is also May 10. Those applications must be filed with the secretary of state.

The deadline for other state offices, including the school board and fire offices, is June 28.

Primary elections will be held in the state on September 12. General elections are November 7.

Nominations for awards sought

Nominations for beautification awards in support of the Utah Valley Beautiful Month are now being accepted by the Utah Valley LDS Communications Council.

According to Lee Nelson, Utah Valley Beautiful chairman, nominations may be made for noteworthy clean-up, tree planting or other efforts by homes, businesses and farms within the valley.

Anyone may make a nomination, which should be sent to the LDS Public Communications Council, 209 N. 400 W., Provo. Winners will receive a Certificate of Merit, presented by the LDS Church.

Muscular Dystrophy Day Saturday

A Utah County proclamation has established May 7 as "Muscular Dystrophy Day."

County commissioners signed the proclamation to assist with the Jerry Lewis Telethon on Sunday, and are urging citizens of the county to join the fund-raising campaign in the fight against neuromuscular diseases.

On campus...

Friday last day to drop

Monday, May 8, is the last day students may add classes for spring term, according to John Call, registration counselor.

Thursday is the last day classes may be dropped without paying a fee. Both adding and dropping classes requires the signature of the instructor.

Classes may be dropped after Thursday for academic reasons until May 17, but a $3 fee per class will be charged.

Swimming volunteers needed

Volunteers are needed to help teach the handicapped to swim.

Those wishing to help should attend an orientation meeting Thursday, May 4 at the Richards Building Pool from 10 to 11 a.m.

No experience is needed to participate in the program.

The regular program will begin May 9 and classes will be every Tuesday and Thursday. It will continue until the end of summer semester.

More information can be obtained from Jim Murphy, ext. 4847.

SDA needs student help

The Student Development Association is soliciting help from students for Spring and Summer terms and Fall semester.

Vice president Randy Holmgren reported that volunteers are needed to help the association provide projects and activities for the student body.

SDA is a student-sponsored association designed to give students the opportunity to contribute toward the betterment of the student body.

One of SDA's most recent projects was the Library Telethon, which raised money to help pay for the addition to the Harold B. Lee Library.

Students interested in working with the SDA may pick up application forms from either the SDA office, 165 ALUM, or the ASBYU receptionist, 4th floor ELWC, Holmgren said.

Study the scriptures,

Knowledge of the scriptures will give one power for good in a multitude, Elder James M. Paramore, of the First Quorum of the Seventy, told students in BYU's first Spring Term devotional held Tuesday in the Marriott Center.

He also said by limiting ourselves in this life, we limit ourselves in the hereafter.

By reading and knowing the scriptures one can follow the teachings of Christ, Elder Paramore said. He quoted Matthew 19:21, "if thou will be perfect, come and follow me."

Elder Paramore has served in more than 50 countries. He was called to his current position in the First Quorum of the Seventy in April 1977.

After 15 months in the field the missionary came to a door with the same last name on it. He found the man at this place to be his uncle who had emigrated from Belgium to France.

When he approached his uncle the only thing he could say in French was "Wise men are the missionaries."

After finding out his nephew had been in France for 15 months and still did not know the language, his uncle said he was disappointed in him. After this experience, Elder Paramore related, the missionary began a vigorous study of the discussions. He soon learned them and became firmly committed to the work.

"Gospel study is the real basis for all spiritual growth," Elder Paramore said. "A study of the scriptures leads us

"I remember when larks were everywhere. Where have they gone? Where will we go? We don't have the where-withal."

Last December, Kennecott told Lark's 470 residents that the company, which owned the world's largest open-pit copper mine, wants to expand into the mountain town, 40 miles south of Salt Lake City.

The company owns the land and would be one of seven towns already closed by Kennecott. Residents had believed they could stay on until 1985 under an agreement with UV Industries, which owned the town before Kennecott.

Today, the population has dwindled to 350, about 55 homeowners and 65 renters. Kennecott has offered to compensate the homeowners $7,000 for their homes, but has made no offer to the renters.

The Lark delegation says the average value of homes in the area is $59,000. They are asking $45,000 for each homeowner and, according to Housing and Urban Development guidelines, $5,500 for each renter.

Korean pilot tells of Soviet landing

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — The pilot of a Korean Air Lines jet forced down over the Soviet Union April 20 said Wednesday he didn't know he was in Soviet airspace until his copilot saw a Russian fighter with its red star insignia.

Pilot Kim Chang-kyu and navigator Lee Kun-shik returned Wednesday from Paris. The Soviets, who had detained them for questioning, released them Sunday.

Kim declined to go into details of the incident, saying the plane's "black box" flight recorder was confiscated by the Russians and he and his navigator were still recovering from the release.

He said the Russians denied him permission to copy the Boeing 707's flight records before he was released.

The plane strayed into Soviet air space on a polar flight from Paris to Seoul via Anchorage, Alaska. Two passengers were killed and 10 injured when the Russian jet fired on the KAL plane, blowing a grapefruit-sized hole in the fuselage.

The plane landed on a frozen lake near Murmansk in northwestern Russia. Since South Korea has no diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union, the United States negotiated the release of the other 106 occupants and the bodies of the two men who were killed.

Kim was asked if he saw the Russian jet signal him to land, but declined comment. Passengers and other crew members said they saw no such signs. The Soviets said they signaled the plane before they fired.

Before being freed, they admitted violating Soviet air space and disobeying the orders of the Soviet jet, the Soviet news agency Tass reported.

He was asked whether he noticed a malfunction in the cockpit compass and if he did, what measures he took. But he declined to answer pending a Korean government investigation.

Carter orders study on national solar plan

GOLDEN, Colo. (AP) —

President Carter marked his return to Washington Wednesday by ordering a new Cabinet-level study to develop a national solar strategy and by praising solar energy as a potential counterweight to rising oil prices.

In remarks prepared for delivery at the Solar Energy Research Institute, Carter didn't promise any new funds for solar research. But the president noted that his proposed budget for 1979 would set aside a percent increase in money for development of solar power over the federal budget of two years ago.

On the first day of a three-day swing through Colorado, California, Oregon and Washington, Carter announced the Agriculture Department will lend $14 million to the city of Lamar, Colo., for a project to turn livestock excrement into methane gas.

Carter had lost all four states to Gerald R. Ford in the 1976 election, and his Western tour was bailed by the White House's effort to win public support for administration programs.

"Nobody can ignore sunlight," the president told his audience at the research center, a federally financed project operated for the Department of Energy by the private, nonprofit Midwest Research Institute of Kansas City.

"No cartel controls the sun," Carter said in an apparent reference to the Arab oil embargo of 1973-74. "Its energy will not run out. It will not pollute our air or poison our waters. It is free from stench and smog. The sun's power needs only to be collected, stored and used."

The question is no longer whether solar energy works," he added. "We know it works. The only question is how to cut costs so that solar power can be used more widely and set a cap on rising oil prices."

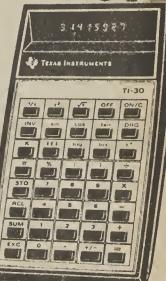

Carter said his energy plan, still stalled in Congress, would increase use of solar energy systems by offering more than $500 million in tax credits — up to $2,000 for each homeowner — over the next seven years.

The Cabinet-level review will be headed by Energy Secretary James Schlesinger, who accompanied Carter on the trip. The panel will issue a report by May 1 to help Carter make budget and legislative recommendations next fall.

"The job of this committee will be to develop an overall solar strategy for speeding the use of solar technologies — both by new programs and by improving existing federal programs," Carter said.

Root seekers find sources

By PAT BROWN

It's cropping up more and more in magazines and on television with roots spilling out far and wide, it cannot be killed, though adversaries try. Dusty old atlties and damp basements entertain many persons to the late hours of the night, everyone in search of one thing: their progenitors.

Who are those people that your grandparents used to call gramps?

More and more people are finding that their family lines contributed those traits they used to consider ugly. Influences on their ancestors on their lives are becoming obvious.

That's my father'

This is inherited originally is expressed in the methods they used to find their ancestors, too.

Edith Corley Harris of Southwick, Mass., wanted to find out what happened to her great uncle's brother. Family rumors said he moved to Jackson County, Mo., in 1898. So, that's where she went.

In the small town he was rumored to have settled in, she walked into the grocery store and explained to the elderly grocer what she was doing in town. After a moment of silence, he exclaimed, "That's my father you're talking about."

While some spend time traveling throughout the United States others must rely on their own private research. The LDS Church Genealogical Society helps with this.

Local sources

Sue Mickelsen of the Utah Valley Branch Genealogical Library, says in the average month several hundred inquiries are resolved by employees of the Library. Sources in Provo include census records, county and family histories, Ohio vital records, and microfilm newspapers.

Also available at the library are films through an interlibrary loan with the Salt Lake City Genealogical Library. Through the library loan, vital records of states east of the Mississippi may be obtained for research.

Patrons find states

Genealogists must sometimes use novel methods to find dead ancestors. Graveyards are searched and townspeople interviewed.

west of the Mississippi must be handled through correspondence with persons living in the areas ancestors resided. Though county clerks and county genealogical societies are frequent, patrons often overlook correspondence with sources which don't seem so obvious.

Other ideas

Professional genealogists gave this writer other ideas on how to talk to town clerks and strangers with the same surname often come in handy.

Mrs. Smith, of California, wanted to find information on her Vancosy line. Knowing that some of the Vancosys of Randolph County, W.Va. (where her ancestor was from) married Coberlys, she wrote to herself in Elkins, W.Va., Ramelton County seat. He not only knew people who had compiled information on the Vancosys, but he provided pictures and a sketch of the Vancosys who had married into his family.

Courthouse fires

Still others only employ genealogists to do research.

courthouse exists which hasn't burned. Town halls, however, aren't quite as prone to fires.

In my personal research, I wrote to Custer, Okla., the last residence of my great-great uncle. I explained to the town clerk that I wanted to know more about my relative. Within a week I received three snapshots, a short biography, and the addresses of some of his children. The town clerk's parents turned out to be his old friend.

BYU offers its students a better deal in tuition

By PAUL SKOUSEN
University Staff Writer

Have you ever wondered how your tuition is spent?

Last Fall, BYU president Dallin H. Oaks said church appropriations are now paying slightly more than two-thirds of the total cost of education for each person enrolled at BYU.

rounding off tuition to $400 per semester, plus support from the Church, it would cost about $1,200 per student to attend BYU.

With about 25,000 students attending BYU, the cost to run this university might be in the neighborhood of about $30 million per semester.

About a fifth of this goes towards faculty salary, leaving a remaining $24 million.

Part of this goes towards the general operating budget of the university, Durfee said, "which includes support from the LDS church education fund, foundations and gifts from other outside sources."

Tuition is not sufficient to support all of BYU's programs as the Administration would like, Durfee said, but, "more students are able to attend because of our lower tuition rates."

To actually compare dollar of tuition for dollar of university expenditures, would be unrealistic, he said.

University employees absorb approximately half a million dollars each semester from the budget. Concerts, guest speakers, travel expenditures for various groups on campus and general operating costs absorb the remainder of the budget.

As for rising tuition costs, Durfee said, "inflation is our worst factor."

A recent study shows that between 1975-77, tuition for an LDS undergraduate rose 5.6 percent, while the non-LDS inflation was 6.4 percent.

Comparing other private universities across the nation with BYU shows "Y" students still get one of the best "deals" when it comes to tuition.

To attend Yale University a full school year, equivalently to two semesters at BYU, would cost $4,400, Durfee said. Tuition charges approximately the same.

Dartmouth charges $4,530 and Princeton University charges $4,650. This is compared to BYU's two-semester tuition rate of $780 ($1,170, non-LDS).

A study made of "good colleges" which cost less, published in Changing Times, listed BYU among 64 schools as the second most inexpensive university.

Where, does a BYU student's tuition go?

Ten dollars from each student goes to the Health Center, but the whereabouts of the $390 each student pays can't be spelled out in black and white.

Local man is producing movies in Lindon rather than Hollywood

By DARYL GIBSON
Local Managing Editor

Under-stage lined streets of Lindon may be a far cry from the streets of Provo, but that hasn't stopped Nielsen from making movies: he built his own sound stage.

Would not build a sound stage, Nielsen says. "We're not commercial, this is my barn."

Nielsen has filmed part of "Barn" and has it with a full two-level set that stands at will.

How then did a Lindon man get into writing and producing movies, of all things?

"Well, I've been a storyteller all my life," Nielsen comments. "Finally put one down. On a dare from my wife, I put one down on black and white for a Christmas story."

Disney movie

"I'm quite creative, both in my spelling and punctuation," he said. "She had an English teacher look it over."

That script, later sold to Disney, is being produced as "The Christmas Tree Man" by Disney in Hollywood.

Nielsen leans back in his director's chair on the second story of his "barn" as a gleam comes into his eyes. The story of the movie never leaves his lips as he relates the tale of "The Christmas Tree Man," which he prefers to call his working title, "To Be Found."

The story tells of an elderly bachelor who furnishes all of the Christmas trees for the population of a small town, always keeping one for his own family as he cuts the tree. One year, the bachelor cuts an extra tree, for whom he does not know. However, Nielsen relates, the bachelor in the end finds a poor family who can benefit from the tree.

"It's a heart-warmer," he concludes.

Major productions

The script sat around for three years after he wrote it for his wife's Relief Society, before he sold it to Disney.

Nielsen's first production, "Cry to the Wind" is presently being tested in Atlanta markets. The film is receiving good publicity and attendance, according to Alan Rockwell, who is helping with the production.

Mark Miller, Nielsen's second film, tentatively titled "End" is beginning production. Casting for the film was recently conducted, Nielsen said.

The movie will be largely filmed in Eastern Utah around Moab, he commented.

Nielsen and his son built his "barn" in about eight working days, with a little help from friends in the neighborhood and with the assist from his family in the back of the "barn."

the Utah Stuntmen Association. "They came over because they're just good people," Nielsen states.

Wolves and Lions

The main reason he built the studio was because of a lack of easily accessible production facilities, he adds. At the time of the building, "BYU was the only facilities we could go in and they charged us $500 a day and about $15 a man-hour."

One good reason for the new stage was shown in the filming of "Cry to the Wind." The film features several timberwolves, a bobcat and a mountain lion. With a supporting cast like that, Nielsen comments, BYU studios would have been torn up in the filming.

The animals were raised by Nielsen and his family in the back of the "barn." Admittedly, this did cause a few problems with the city and even problems between the animals themselves, especially with the timberwolves.

"Once they sent a hot-shot animal control officer up here, and he was going to shoot it with a 30-30," he said.

Million dollar wolf

Sitting back in his chair and chuckling to himself, he said his animal control officer came up to his daughter, Cheyenne, pointed at the wolf and asked what kind of dog it was.

"That's a Timberwolf," Nielsen's daughter replied.

Nielsen said the animal control officer went back to his truck and reached for his rifle. However, Cheyenne and Nielsen's wife stared him down and the animal their "Million Dollar Wolf."

"Well, he got back in his truck, rolled the window most of the way up and yelled 'Good luck little girl,' Nielsen laughs.

Nielsen's cameras, but professional approaches to filmmaking is shown not only in the quality he produces, but in the way he occasionally piles hay in his "barn" and uses it for a barn, as well as a timberwolf court.

"If you can make things serve for two purposes, they only cost you half as much," he laughs.

David Nielsen, Lindon, says this bar is the only unlicensed bar in Lindon.

12 presidents called

Professor to lead Italy mission

A BYU professor of Germanic Languages has been called by the Church to serve as president of the Italy Padova mission.

The call was one of 12 announced by the Church along with 51 other mission head assignments.

Dr. Arthur R. Watkins, who first joined the BYU faculty 30 years ago, will leave for Europe July 8.

The new president of the Salt Lake Missionary Home will be former BYU Housing Director Carl D. Jones.

An Oregon resident, Carl D. Jones, will be the new president of the Bolivia La Paz Mission, and Eugene L. Jones of Provo will preside over the Arkansas Little Rock Mission.

Watkins, 61, graduated from BYU in 1941, received his M.A. a year later and spent two-and-a-half years in Italy while in the military.

"I made a very diligent effort to learn Italian," Watkins recited.

He then did some teaching and interviewing of Italian for the Church.

Even though Watkins is a Germanic professor, he has taught Italian for five years at BYU.

The only time since 1948 Watkins has not been on the BYU faculty was when he served as president of the Austrian La Paz Mission.

"These languages we learn and think we've forgotten are actually recorded," Watkins said. He said he is preparing for the mission by reviewing the Italian language.

Watkins said he "slept very little" after talking to LDS Church President Spencer W. Kimball.

Padova is in the northeastern section of Italy, about 50 miles west of Venice. The mission has 19 branches, 140 missionaries and about 200 members. It is one of four Italian missions, the first of which was created 12 years ago.

"The Italian people are a good people," Watkins said. "They are open and friendly people."

Watkins has served as a BYU tour guide and says he has been back to Italy 12 to 15 times in the past 20 years.

He says he is not sure whether he will teach at BYU upon completion of his three year assignment, because he will have passed his retirement age.

Watkins, the son of former U.S. Senator Arthur V. Watkins, will see his youngest child enter the Langauge Training Mission July 6, and then travel to Padova with his wife, Ruth.

Carl Jones, 58, an LTM staff member, was first appointed BYU housing director in 1964, and held that position until he was called to go into private business. He was the original president of the BYU 9th Stake.

Hill, 36, is now serving as assistant director of instruction at the LTM.

Eugene Jones, 43, works in real estate and general contracting.

The other eight men called include George L. Bourget of Eustace, Texas.

Quebec, Canada. He will preside over the Fiji Suva Mission. Angel Abrea of Buenos Aires, Argentina, will lead the Argentina Rosario Mission and Wilford A. Carlson, Mesa, Ariz., has been called as president of the Brazil São Paulo South Mission.

Hugo Ruben Gazzoni, San Nicolas, Argentina, will head the Argentina Cordoba Mission.

Also called were Lester C. Haworth, Kailua-Kona, Hawaii, to the Indonesia Jakarta Mission and Benjamin Martinez, Bountiful, currently working as a zone administrator for the Church Education system to the California Ventura Mission. Martinez has spent the past three years in a church legal assignment in the Philippines.

Of the 60 missions who will be released this July, four are LDS General Authorities: Elders Loren C. Dunn, George P. Lee, Derek A. Cuthbertson and Rex C. Reeve Sr., all of the First Quorum of the Seventy in the LDS Church.

Also returning to Utah after serving as a Canadian mission president will be former U.S. Congressman Wayne D. Owens. Owens served one term in Congress as a representative from Utah.

Longtime staff member appointed head of alum

Stephen L. Barrett has been appointed Executive Director of the BYU Alumni Association after serving as a staff member for 12 years.

Barrett, a native of Logan, Utah, has served as assistant director, executive director and acting director of the Alumni Association. He will replace Ronald G. Hyde, who has been called to serve as Mission Director of the Birmingham Mission. Following his term as mission director, Hyde will resume his former position with the Alumni Association.

Barrett was assistant director of Aspen Grove Family Camp for summers before assuming full duties with the Alumni Association in 1969.

Three Y gridders among NFL first day draftees

Three BYU football players were among the 164 college stars selected Tuesday in the first six rounds of the NFL draft.

Todd Christensen, Gifford Nielsen, and Mike Lomont were chosen in the first day of the two-day affair, giving BYU the best showing from the WAC.

As expected, Heisman Trophy winner Earl Campbell of Texas was the first player selected, and will be in a Houston Oiler uniform next season. Campbell, a 6-1, 220-pounder who gained 1,774 yards for the Longhorns last season, will get a whopping $1.2 million over the next five years.

There were no surprises in the Tuesday's first round, as every team did exactly as expected.

The Kansas City Chiefs, whose defense ranked dead last in the league in 1977 and had an embarrassing 2-12 record, selected Kentucky defensive end Art Still, who is a mere 6-7 and weighs 250 pounds.

The New Orleans Saints used their pick to grab Florida's fleet-footed wide receiver Wes Chandler. The Saints had the fourth selection of the round, and took Ohio State's Chris Terry Miller, the most

Those firsts, according to Coach Carl McGowan, are a first Double AA tournament win in Cal for a Cougar squad and also becoming the first non-Cal team to win the Warm Up tournament.

The Cougars won the title from among 12 teams. The tournament serves as a warm up for the United States Volleyball Association championship, which will be held in El Paso, Texas from May 16-20. BYU will leave to participate in the USAV event on May 14.

Volleyball team wins tournament in USVA meet

The BYU men's volleyball team established two historic firsts this past weekend en route to winning the Warm Up Volleyball Tournament for the state of California.

Those firsts, according to Coach Carl McGowan, are a first Double AA tournament win in Cal for a Cougar squad and also becoming the first non-Cal team to win the Warm Up tournament.

The Cougars won the title from among 12 teams. The tournament serves as a warm up for the United States Volleyball Association championship, which will be held in El Paso, Texas from May 16-20. BYU will leave to participate in the USAV event on May 14.

"We're just playing super volleyball," said Carl McGowan. "We have built up a tremendous record." Not sure of the official record, McGowan guessed that his squad carries a record of approximately 90 wins and seven losses.

"Our team is just playing super," McGowan added.

In singles action, Kennington lost to fellow All-American Barbara Hallquist, the two-time USTA Collegiate prolific ground-gainer in the history of the Big Eight Conference.

The New York Giants picked Gordon King, a 272-pound offensive tackle from Stanford, in the second round. Keith Simpson, a defensive back from Memphis State with blazing speed, was grabbed by the Jets. Luther Bradley, one of three Notre Dame players taken in the first round

In rapid succession, Atlanta chose defensive tackle from Stanford, and the 1976 Outstanding Trophy winner from Notre Dame and Washington center Blair Bush. Cleveland chose defensive back from Miami, and St. Louis picked Arkansas kicker Steve Little and Washington State defensive back Ken Greene.

Denver, the American Conference champion in last season, took defensive tackle Don Latimer from Miami, and Dallas, the Super Bowl champion, closed out the first round by selecting Michigan State defensive end Larry Bethea.

Highest Y draftee

BYU's Christensen, selected in the second round by the Chiefs, became the highest defensive end ever drafted. Christensen was a fullback at BYU, but is expected to be switched to either a tight end or a defensive end. He is a deep in the running department, with the likes of Tony Dorsett and Robert Newhouse.

"I was pleased to go with such a good organization," said Christensen. "It's the way, though, I was kind of curious as to why I went with them. They expressed interest, but not as much as other teams."

Four quarterbacks were selected ahead of Green Bay took Stanford wide receiver James Lofton and Michigan linebacker John Anderson. San Francisco selected Notre Dame tight end Ken MacAfee and linebacker Dan Bunn from Cal State Long Beach.

Seattle selected Ross Browner, the 1976 Outstanding Trophy winner from Notre Dame and Washington center Blair Bush. Cleveland chose defensive back from Miami, and St. Louis picked Arkansas kicker Steve Little and Washington State defensive back Ken Greene.

Denver, the American Conference champion in last season, took defensive tackle Don Latimer from Miami, and Dallas, the Super Bowl champion, closed out the first round by selecting Michigan State defensive end Larry Bethea.

Williams, Pitt's Matt Cavanaugh was picked by New England, Stanford's Guy Benjamin was selected by Miami, and North Carolina State's Johnny Evans went to Cleveland.

Nielsen happy

Nielsen said he was happy to be picked by the Oilers.

"Houston is a beautiful place, and there is a tremendous opportunity for me down there," said Nielsen. "John Hadl was picked up. Dan Pastorini, retired, and I was the first quarterback they drafted. They took Campbell as their first pick, and they didn't have a second-round pick."

Ken Shipp, the offensive coordinator for the Oilers was very excited about the selection. "Of the six quarterbacks we considered, Gifford had the best overall IQ test," explained Shipp. "His left knee is what deterred other teams from drafting him. I was really surprised that he had not been drafted by the time our choice came up. I knew the knee was bad. I went to BYU in February, and worked with him out."

Iremia, a defensive tackle, was selected in the sixth round by the Chicago Bears, where he will be reunited with Don Scoll, the offensive coordinator for the Cougars last season.

Other WAC stars to be selected early were Colorado State defensive end Al Baker, who went to Detroit in the second round, and Wyoming's

Francis Chesley, a linebacker grabbed by New Orleans in the sixth round.

Christensen's long awaited call arrives

By LISA JOHNSON
University Sports Reporter

Todd? This is Gil Brandt of the Dallas days. We've just drafted you."

In those few words, Todd Christensen, 5'10" star fullback, knew his life-long ambition fulfilled.

In the second round of the NFL draft, Christensen was elated about the Cowboys. "They're the champs. Of course I'm excited; it's obvious that they're the best organization. Not only athletically, but the whole team is well structured."

Christensen had been hovering in the vicinity of phone all morning awaiting that magic call. "Hi Todd. Gil Brandt here. But after the first round choices were out, I received a phone call, 'Hi Todd. Gil Brandt is conspicuously omitting my team affiliation. Would you be willing to play for the Cowboys?'"

Less than an hour after Todd had given an eager "yes", the call came through making official. "Dallas picks the best player, regardless of their positions," said Christensen. "I think that's why they picked me, an athlete with versatility."

We asked what kind of a contribution he felt he would make to the Cowboys his first year out. Christensen replied that Dallas is a team that brings out the best in him. "I think that's why he's starting at first. They've got a team and they don't need many new players. I'm not one to sit around. I started on varsity my freshman year at BYU, and I'm sure going to try for the Cowboys. A lot will depend on how well I do at camp and in the exhibition games."

Christensen was hesitant to comment on the financial aspects of his new profession. "My agent has been working on contracts for the next two months, but then he has a pretty good idea of what I'm worth," Christensen said. "Since I was drafted in the second round, I won't be signing one of fantastic contracts people hear about. I'll be making good money, but not super."

Todd says his family "just went crazy" when they heard the news. "More burst into tears and told me that just the night before Dad said he hoped I'd go to Dallas. Dad's in the Bishopric, maybe he's got something going," Christensen joked.

The personal side of Todd's draft also excites him. "I think Dallas is a great place to live, and I'll be looking forward to moving down there. There's a lot more to a town than its football team." Todd doesn't know any of the Cowboys personally, but was eager to note that there are two other Latter-day Saints on the team, Golden Richards and Danny White. Danny is the second string quarterback behind Roger Staubach and Todd says "One of the first things I'll do when I get to Dallas is call Danny to see what time priesthood starts."

The fact that Todd wasn't chosen in the first round may have been a disappointment to him, but being chosen in the second round still makes him the highest draft choice ever to come out of BYU. It seems that Todd Christensen is well on his way up, how high no one can say.

BYU's Todd Christensen is the highest draft choice ever for a Cat gridiron.

UTEP team to beat in WAC meet Cougars strong in field events

By ECHO ROBERSON
University Sports Reporter

BYU's track and field athletes will be contending for team honors at the WAC Track and Field championships in El Paso Texas this weekend.

The host team, UTEP, is the favorite to win the team title, but coach Ted Banks has made winning a habit and this year is no exception.

The decathlon competition begins today and continues through Friday afternoon. The favorite in the defending championship, Tito Steiner of BYU, Steiner is also the defending NCAA champion. His best mark this year is 8,026 points. In addition to Steiner, the Cougars will send Dennis Miller, a junior college transfer from Colorado. Last year, Miller was the national junior college champion in the decathlon. Miller was fourth in the Texas Relays. Steiner was hampered with a sprained ankle and did not make the trip to Texas Relays.

Track activity begins Friday night and concludes Saturday night.

UTEP depth

The Miners have a lot of depth in the field events and their chances for success at BYU should be well in the field events. Last year NCAA champ Arizona State is not expected to be as strong this year.

BYU Head coach Clarence Robison is looking forward to the WAC with great anticipation. "I feel like most of the team is ready," he said. "I think that this will be the best WAC meet ever. There is a lot of good talent at this meet."

Distance coach Gerald James is also looking forward to the meet. "I feel that the altitude will be in our favor at this meet," James said. "Runners that train at higher altitudes have an advantage when they run at a low altitude. I think that it will be a good meet," he said.

Top competitor on the Cougar's list should be Henry Marsh in the steeplechase. Marsh is the American record holder in the event with an 8:21.6 time. In the WAC championships last year in Poco, Marsh ran a photo-finish race with UTEP's James Munyala. Both runners were given the same time, but Marsh was given a second-place finish. Recently Marsh ran an excellent time of 8:32.5 at Drake Relays to prepare for the WAC.

Cougar distance ace Luis Hernandez will try for another double win in the WAC. Hernandez is the defending champion in the 5,000 meters and in the 10,000 meters.

Swedish competition

In the field events, Swedish shot putter Per Nilsson will go against countryman Hans Ahlstrom of UTEP.

Ahlstrom is the top ranked shot putter nationally at 64-1.

In the discus, BYU's Kent Gardenkranz will face good competition from state El Paso's Steve Walvick.

BYU's hope in the high jump is sophomore Kim Nielsen who has an outdoor best of 7-2.

In the pole vault, BYU's Chris Childs is a hopeful to place. Childs has an outdoor best of 16-6.

The Cougars have a solid middle distance crew of Alan Schultz, Zenos Moreno, Kevin Hyde, Jay Woods, Blaine Anderson and Kim Combs. These runners will aid the Cougars in getting points.

Pitching should be the key to the series as Wyoming is hitting .292 as a team with five hitters over the .300 mark. Cowboy pitchers have yielded 5.19 runs per game while Cougar hurlers have a combined ERA of 3.97.

While BYU has been swinging a big bat, the Cougar pitching staff has Pullins concerned. "Our ERA's ridiculous," he said. "I'm worried about our starters. We've started over six different pitchers but they've all been hot and cold," Coach Pullins said.

The northern division standings show BYU at 11-1 with Wyoming at 5-7 with the Utes (4-7) and Colorado State (3-8) rounding out the field.

The standings of the southern division have ASU on top at 11-1 followed by the University of Arizona (4-4), New Mexico at 3-9 and UTEP at 2-10.

Cougars rated underdogs in WAC tennis tourney

WAC finals start Thursday in El Paso, Texas for the BYU men's tennis team, and it looks like ASU and defending champs Utah are the teams to beat.

Arizona State is the early favorite, with a 25-2 dual meet record, including a close 5-4 win over BYU Monday, and a 6-3 win over Utah.

Utah's veteran experience cannot be disregarded though, with last year's entire WAC winning team returning for this year's competition. Their line up features two defending WAC singles champions, Kent Crawford (two time All-American), and Jim Greenberg, plus last year's number one doubles team of Crawford and Dave Sheberd. The Utes are currently 14-3, a record containing two wins over BYU.

BYU has also downed Utah twice though, and all of the BYU netters have singles and doubles victories over their Utah counterparts.

This year's number one singles title is up for grabs, with Cougar Clark Diehl and Utah's Crawford defeating each other twice. Other threats come from ASU's Eric Sheberd and New Mexico's Tim Garcia, who both beat Diehl earlier this week.

The Cougar team only has two players with WAC experience. One is All-American Sr. Mike Nissley, who teamed with BYU's Bruce Kleege to win the 1975 WAC doubles and was runner up to Kleege for the title.

Top competitor on the Cougar's list should be Henry Marsh in the steeplechase. Marsh is the American record holder in the event with an 8:21.6 time. In the WAC championships last year in Poco, Marsh ran a photo-finish race with UTEP's James Munyala. Both runners were given the same time, but Marsh was given a second-place finish. Recently Marsh ran an excellent time of 8:32.5 at Drake Relays to prepare for the WAC.

tionwide celebrants gather to promote solar power use

By the Associated Press

"Sun Day" celebrants across the country paid tribute to the power and potential of solar energy with displays, demonstrations and educational action. But the sun itself proved a bit of a showstopper, failing to show up for a several places.

Next to focus attention on the sun was a solar Action In, a Washington-based non-profit. Backers included consumer activists, environmentalists, businessmen, government officials and labor leaders.

Most of the activities across the country were in Iowa. There were sun service and solar suns. There were songs to the sun and movies about sun. A Cedar Rapids group gathered at 5 o'clock to the woods to watch the sun come ceremonies — which included a yoga exercise for the sun to rise. There were suns and suns, whole wheat muffins, suns, which explained one participant's name, sun juice, lemonade and honey.

The nation's capital began early in the morning with speeches, music and solar-cooked treats around the Washington Monument in a giant sundial.

Bob Carter prepared for a trip to Colorado such as the Solar Energy Institute.

Others, who began "Sun Day" observances with a 5:57 a.m. ceremony outside U.N. headquarters, got a bright sunny day for the occasion. Parts of Oklahoma and Kansas, however, were covered with snow. In Maine, the Cadillac Mountain in Acadia National Park in Maine, the sun set behind clouds and in New Orleans, outdoor fair speeches and other activities were cancelled or moved indoors because of a storm which dumped 4.21 inches of rain on the city between 7 a.m. and 11 a.m.

The speakers around the country had a common theme: Solar power can cut energy costs without damaging the environment and the federal government.

One sign of federal support for solar power came in the announcement by the Department of Energy of the winners of $573,000 in grants awarded to five hospitals to help pay for experimental, solar hot water systems. The hospitals are: Wesley Medical Center, Wichita, Kan.; Santa Clara Medical Center, Calif.; St. Mary's Hospital, Rutherford, N.J.; and Dayton Children's Hospital, Dayton, Ohio.

A sign of international support for solar power came in full-page advertisements placed in The Washington Post, Washington Star and The New York Times by Saudi Arabia, holder of the world's largest oil reserves and the leading exporter of oil to the United States.

One read, in part: "We share America's increased awareness of the potential of solar energy, not only for our two nations, but for all the people of the world."
